Agricultural Ministers meeting on June 21st and 22nd reached agreement on the quantities of New Zealand butter to be admitted into the Community between 1978 and 1980. The quantities agreed upon for those three years were 125,000, 120,000 and 115,000 tonnes.

The results of the Italian elections showed Communist gains, but left the Christian Democrats with a slight lead. In an interview Vice-President Haferkamp suggested that there should be a Community "Marshall-Plan" for Italy.

Between June 22nd and June 24th President Giscard d'Estaing made a state visit to Britain. During his visit agreement was reached on closer links between Britain and France.

A House of Commons select committee, set up to consider European direct elections, stressed the importance of sufficient representation for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Member States failed to reach agreement on Community representation at the Puerto Rico world economic conference.
